

ARTSY

• Casey Lesser Jun 2, 2016 7:01 pm

15 New York Gallery Shows Where You'll Find Exciting Young Artists This June

A new crop of fresh talent kicks off the summer months at galleries across New York, spanning solo debuts and smart group shows to complement your social media addiction or upturn perceptions of the female form.

Installation view of “Elysian Redux” at Asya Geisberg Gallery. Photo by Etienne Frossard. Courtesy of Asya Geisberg Gallery.

“Elysian Redux” at Asya Geisberg Gallery

May 19–June 25, 537B West 23rd Street

Shane Walsh, Leah Guadagnoli, Rachel Higgins, Ad Minoliti, Dominique Pétrin, Ben Sanders

This show was inspired by the resurgence of the aesthetics, design, and popular imagery of the 1980s—particularly from the iconic British poster company of the era, Athena—among the work of contemporary artists. Works range from Sanders’s enameled planters covered in cheerful motifs to Guadagnoli’s foamy upholstered wall hangings to Rachel Higgins’s faux stone plinths.