

Events and Parties

Editors' Picks: 19 Things Not to Miss in New York's Art World This Week

There's still plenty to do in New York's art world during the dog days of summer.

Sarah Cascone, August 5, 2019

Through Friday, August 16

Emma Webster, Pale Horse (2019). Courtesy of Asya Geisberg Gallery.

16. "Plastic Garden" at Asya Geisberg

The mind-melting heat of summer finds a visual equivalent in this exhibition of landscapes that are all in various ways synthetic, from toxic colored skies to looming, mammoth flora. The seven-person show hints at the enduring legacies of Henri Rousseau's fantastical jungle scenes and Georgia O'Keeffe desert scenes. Emma Webster's baroque-meets-Lisa-Frank scenes are at once decadent and dystopian.

Location: Asya Geisberg, 537b West 23rd Street

Price: Free

Time: Tuesday–Friday, 11 a.m.–6 p.m.

—Katie White

AUTRE

DAILY JOURNAL

STORE

ART

INTERVIEWS

STOCKISTS

ASYA GEISBERG GALLERY PRESENTS "PLASTIC GARDEN" GROUP EXHIBITION IN NEW YORK

July 22, 2019

"Plastic Garden" is an exhibition curated by Katrina Slavik featuring the works of seven painters: Madeleine Bialke, Jennifer Coates, Sharona Eliassaf, Adrienne Elise Tarver, Joani Tremblay, Emma Webster, and Brian Willmont. These artists depict landscape and flora through a synthetic lens, creating lush, technicolor dystopias. In combination, their works seek a spiritual connection to nature not through awe-inspiring vistas, but with toxic colors, moody surrealism, and industrial surfaces.

"Plastic Garden" is on view through August 16 at Asya Geisberg Gallery 537B West 23rd Street, New York, NY. photographs courtesy of the gallery and Etienne Frossard